Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J.,
Operative - 312.

312/Gibson

November 17, 1922. Continuing on the above matter, Operative reported at the plant of the International Motor Co., New Brunswick, N.J., for work at 7 a.m.

At about 9 a.m., it being very slack at the plant, Operative quite work, proceeded to his room and changed his clothes.

At 10 a.m. Operative joined Garry Kenny at the railroad station. Garry Kenny told Operative that a fellow by the name of Moore told him about the two new witnesses that Mason had. It seems that the two new witnesses that Mason has in tow, are "Piggy" Smith, and a girl by the name of Agnes Caffrey. (her right name being McCaffrey). Garry Kenny related to Operative how Moore told him that Piggy Smith and Agnes Caffrey were up at the Phillips Farm on the night of the crime, and that the girl was now down with her sister at Bound Brook, N.J., and that the Officials were keeping her there until they were ready for her and Smith to come forward and verify the story of Mrs. Gibson. Operative further learned from Garry Kenny, that Piggy Smith is a very rough sort of a fellow, and that the reason why the Officials are with-holding other names is so that the press will not get hold of them and write a lot of stuff about them.

Operative after remaining with Garry Kenny for about one hour, left the railroad station, and while roaming about the town met Mr. Bradley.

Mr. Bradley related to Operative how Dr. Hamborsky had sold the Church, and how he had trouble with people, and that Hamborsky got up against it and started in the insurance business, and how Dr. Hamborsky had done some people out of money. Mr. Bradley related to Operative how Dr. Hamborsky ran around with women, and a number of people got sore on him, and threatened him so much that he left New Brunswick. Mr. Bradley is thoroughly convinced that Dr. Hamborsky would do anything in order to get money.
